TAX COLLECTION REPORTED LAGGING

City Sending 'Snoop Trooper' To Fair

Appointment of an investigator to watch over Circleville's city amusement tax interests at the Pickaway County Fair was decreed Tuesday night by Circleville city council. The big exposition opens next Tuesday.

Since it is the city auditor's job to see that the taxes are paid, indications were that the new position would be a deputy auditor hired only during Fair Week.

Robert Adkins raised an objection to a "snoop trooper," declaring the city's action may cause hard feelings between the two bodies. However it was pointed out the state employees tax investigators under similar circumstances.

When Adkins urged council to speak softly on the matter because "we certainly should be able to trust the fair board officials," Anderson said, "that is true, but those boys who run the concessions do not measure with the same yardstick that Abe Lincoln did."

Anderson said that would be "just fine" because he would be "tickled to death to rescind the incorporation ordinance anyhow."

Diplomat Promises Resistance

Military Given Detailed Talk

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8—Secretary of State George Marshall bluntly charged today that the Berlin disorders are inspired by Communist elements both in and outside of Germany and must be firmly resisted.

The secretary declared the disturbances are specifically designed to upset the four-power meetings attempting to lift the blockade of the German capital.

The secretary's statements were the most forthright coming from his office in regard to the crisis in Germany.

He pledged that the United States will continue to recognize and support the present government of Berlin which the Russians are trying to smash.

Before making his pointed charge, Marshall gave a complete report on the Berlin tinder box to the nation's highest military leaders.

IN AN unusual step, he personally went to the Pentagon and addressed a meeting attended by the Secretaries of Defense, Army, Navy, Air Force and the top ranking officers of the three services.

It was the first time he has made such an appearance since he entered the State Department.

Marshall said the pattern of developments in Berlin follows that of other areas where the Communists have destroyed Democratic processes.

Marshall carefully avoided any report on the progress of the delicate negotiations whereby the United States is seeking to lift the Soviet blockade of the German capital.

The secretary explained that it had been the hope of the United States that these conferences could have taken place in quiet conditions, but said the fact has been the reverse.

The secretary had only words of praise for the Berlin government. Its attitude, he said, has been one of careful restraint maintained in view of the conferences of the military governors now underway.

They are to be commended, he said, for proceeding in a Democratic fashion and the United States will continue to recognize the regime as a going concern.

Nearly 600 Men Already Signed For Draft Here

Since draft registrations began here last Monday, nearly 600 men have signed up with Pickaway County draft board No. 98, Board Clerk Betty Miner reported.

Tuesday established a new record for number of men registered in a single day when 97 conscripts signed in the last day for 23-year-olds. Previous record was 95 set Thursday.

Registration of Pickaway County's 22-year-olds began Wednesday and will continue over Thursday. Other age brackets follow until Sept. 18.

Following is a recount on local draft figures:

Last Monday, 25-26 year olds - 74; Tuesday, 25-year-olds - 91; Wednesday, 25-year-olds - 68; Thursday, 24-year-olds - 95; Friday, 24-year-olds - 76; Saturday, 23-year-olds - 93; and Tuesday, 23-year-olds - 97.

TAX COLLECTION REPORTED LAGGING

City Sending 'Snoop Trooper' To Fair

Appointment of an investigator to watch over Circleville's city amusement tax interests at the Pickaway County Fair was decreed Tuesday night by Circleville city council. The big exposition opens next Tuesday.

This ruling was an outcrop of the fair board's reported failure to pay by deadline Aug. 25, the tax on the harness race held in July. The appointment will be made by Mayor

Thurman I. Miller.

Since it is the city auditor's job to see that the taxes are paid, indications were that the new position would be a deputy auditor hired only during Fair Week.

Ray Anderson sponsored the motion in council meeting on the grounds that the fair board should pay the amusement tax the same as anyone else—"and right now they're two weeks late," Anderson said.

Robert Adkins raised an objection to a "snoop trooper," declaring the city's action may cause hard feelings between the two bodies. However it was pointed out the state employs tax investigators under similar circumstances.

When Adkins urged council to speak softly on the matter because "we certainly should be able to trust the fair board officials," Anderson said, "that is true, but those boys who run the concessions do not measure with the same yardstick that Abe Lincoln did."

Adkins motion to rescind council's order died on the floor for lack of a second.

At that time, Service Director Joseph Rooney said the city may run into some trouble since the incorporation of the county fairgrounds never has been recorded.

Anderson said that would be "just fine" because he would be "tickled to death to rescind the incorporation ordinance anyhow."

The July race meeting referred to by councilmen was the July 3-5 show staged by the Pickaway County Harness Club which is no kin to the Pickaway County Agricultural Society, sponsor of the County Fair.

Flying Corn Cobs Brings Law Suit Against Granary

A damage suit arising from flying corn cobs and husks totaling $1,674.99 is on file in Pickaway County common pleas court naming the Pickaway Grain Co. as defendant.

Frank L. Marion of 217 North Scioto street, lodged the suit in which his petition claims the windblown particles damaged a new paint job on his home.

The petition stated that on June 23, when the paint still was wet on his home, the grain firm began operation of its north elevator causing the flying particles of corn cobs and husks.

For work of burning off damaged paint, husks and cobs, Marion's action asks the court for $674.99 including the cost of repainting parts of the house.

It stated further that $1,000 damage was done by reason of negligence on the part of the grain firm. Marion is asking for a judgement on the matter and a restraining order placed against the defendant to prevent a recurrence of flying cobs and husks.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 8—Ohio State Grange Master Joseph Fichter branded as false today attacks blaming the farmer and federal subsidies for high food prices.

He said the price of wheat has dropped about one third in the past eight months, but "consumers still are being charged the same high price for bread."

Fichter said food prices are set by "meat packers, grain processor distributors and retailers," and not by the farmers. He maintained:

"Government price supports are not the cause of current high food prices. With very few and relatively unimportant exceptions, food prices are above the support prices."

He blamed "a continued strong demand and the continual upward trend of consumer incomes, employment and business activity, and perhaps the increase in population."

His answer to the problem was "abundant production for peaceful purposes."

Go-Ahead Given Two-Way Radio Setup In City

A motion authorizing the city safety department to advertise for bids on a two-way radio system for the police department was approved Tuesday night by Circleville city council.

Councilman Ralph Wallace started the ball rolling with the suggestion to council which gave its immediate assent to the proposal. Cost of the equipment is expected to be about $2,800.

Should the radio hook up be installed here, it would give local police contact with Columbus and Chillicothe police and state patrol barracks and allow police officers here to work more closely with the highway patrol.

The idea was first suggested by Mayor Thurman I. Miller. He declared the expansion of Circleville gave rise for increased police protection, especially with the coming of new industry to this area.

In the long run, Miller stated, the radio would pay for itself in more fines and additional arrests. It was not stated whether the Pickaway County sheriff's office would be allowed use of the new two-way radio setup.

DETROIT, Sept. 8—It was the Republicans' turn to swagger in Michigan today after delivering the initial stab at President Truman's 1948 political campaign.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's envoy, Harold E. Stassen, last night followed Mr. Truman's Detroit Labor Day visit with a blistering attack against the Democratic platform.

The former Minnesota governor told a nationwide radio audience that Mr. Truman's labor appeal was a campaign of hatred and fear.

The GOP spokesman declared:

"Truman's scolding, threatening, complaining speeches were indications that he cannot furnish the essential leadership in affairs at home and abroad so vitally needed in these next crucial years."

Stassen then tore into Truman's labor policy, accusing the President of dishonoring labor (Continued on Page Two)

Legal Fee Offer Hiked $2,500 By City Council

Threatened with a law suit in Pickaway County common pleas court, Circleville city council Tuesday night authorized an offer of $13,000 to cover attorneys fees in 1946 establishing the municipal water system.

This attempted compromise settlement is $2,500 higher than a previous offer of $10,500 made last February to attorneys Tom Renick and Joe Adkins Jr.

The matter was brought to a head when Ervin Leist, water department manager, declared the city's hands were tied financially in the issuing of $60,000 more in bonds for new improvements at the pump station.

Last week, the public utilities board awarded a bid to C. F. Replogle contractors for $41,000 to construct a 400-foot extension to the present water gallery to add one-million gallons daily to the water supply.

Council has agreed to delay the contract negotiations with the contracting firm pending the final outcome of the present situation with the two local attorneys.

H. E. SMITH, manager of the municipal department of Steifel and Nicolaus and Co., Inc., a Chicago bonding house, told Leist his firm cannot handle the bonds as long as the city is involved in litigation.

The bonding firm representative reportedly told Leist following a talk with Renick and Adkins that they planned to file a petition for collection of back fees in the near future.

The four failed to show up at the grand jury hearing despite an invitation to appear to state their side of the story.

The only witnesses were three police officials. Two of them were Capt. Glenn White, head of the narcotics squad, and his assistant, Lt. A. A. Barr, who "staked out" in the grounds about the cottage and then made the raid which preceded the arrests.

THE THIRD was Police Chemist Jay Allen who told the jury the broken, pencil-thin cigarettes seized by the officers were made of marijuana. Allen told the jury:

"It's not a very good grade of marijuana. I would call it a 'medium' mixture."

Mitchum and the two women were represented at the hearing by Attorneys Jerry Giesler and Grant Cooper, who expressed surprise that the grand jury should be so interested in the case. They described the action of the body as "unusual."

No. 2 Fire, Police Bosses Being Readied By Council

Three ordinances held up for second reading Tuesday night by Circleville city council would abolish the office of collector of sewage rental; establish a sergeant of police and an assistant fire chief.

Under the ordinance calling for the abolition of sewage collector involving assessing and billing handled by Miss Charlotte McEwing, her duties would be carried on by employees of the water department.

If passed, the ruling will go into effect Oct. 1. However, Councilmen Ray Cook and Boyd Horn objected on the vote to suspend the rules and the bill automatically was tabled until next council meeting.

The ordinance to establish a police sergeant was drawn up on the suggestion of Police Chief William F. McCrady as a means of having one man always in charge night and day.

It set the pay at $187.50 per month compared to the chief's salary of $191.25 per month. However, Councilman Cook objected on grounds that it would make too many "brass hats" in a small organization.

COOKS motion for tabling the bill until next meeting met with council's approval as did the ordinance creating an assistant to Fire Chief Talmer Wise.

The measure called for the same pay of $187.50 per month. Like the police sergeant, the assistant fire chief would be required to pass a civil service examination and receive an appointment from the mayor.

Stipulated in the ordinance was that the two new offices would be created from present police and fire forces and would not mean an addition of men to either staff.

Of the latter bill, Ray Anderson said sarcastically that if Cook desires to conduct an investigation into both offices, the fire department ordinance likewise should be tabled—and it was.

However, city council did approve the August financial statement, mayor's and Berger hospital reports. Following is the breakdown on balances in city funds:

General fund—$12,120.95; sewerage disposal fund—$3,468.93; hospital fund—$4,355.85; auto street repair fund—$3,806.86; gasoline tax fund—$3,469.71; water works operating fund—$13,968.10; water works improvement fund—$14,645.06; water works refund trust fund—$780; police pension fund—$864.20; and firemen's pension fund—$864.20.

Parking meter collections for August totaled $1,379 and $350.79 was collected from the amusement tax, the report disclosed. Berger hospital report revealed $7,621.65 was collected during the month and $4,902.01 was the expense account.

The mayor's report showed $124 collected in fines, $266 from traffic cases and $2 from licenses.

The money is earmarked for the purchase of new equipment and supplies in maintaining the city's streets and sewers, it was pointed out. Council passed the bill unanimously 7-0.

A second 7-0 vote transferred $500 from the general fund to the salary fund of the city engineer, Harry Griner, under the department of public service.

It was learned in this ordinance that Griner is hired by the city on a daily basis rather than on a straight salary. Meanwhile, another $500 was transferred into the maintenance fund of the safety department.

This money also comes from the general fund and set aside for installation of the city's three new traffic lights at Main, Franklin and Mound streets on Pickaway Street and placing a blinker light at Forest cemetery entrance. It also will be used for maintenance purposes. Council passed the bill 7-0.

IN PASSING a bill on second reading setting aside $2,075 for salaries of special policemen and overtime pay, council reduced the amount to $1,000 in an amendment.

It was pointed out that Chief McCrady is spending on the average of $500 per month for special police and overtime pay. Because of this, Adkins said he favored adding two new regular policemen to the present force. He was overruled.

Another $1,000 was appropriated by council for the installation of a heating system at the water pump station. The need for heating there became evident with the abolition of steam pressure to run the water pumps.

The Columbus Home Furnace Co. bid of $960 was accepted for installation of the heating unit. Heat will be supplied only to the two pump rooms, Ervin Leist, water department manager disclosed.

Council amended the annual appropriation ordinance to include the sum of $500 to the water department service connection fund to cover the installation of new services and purchase of supplies.

Leist said 46 new services had been added so far this year not including the new General Electric plant. This bill also passed council 7-0.

The solons appropriated $50 from the general fund to the fire department incidental fund for the purchase of oxygen and other supplies. Fire Chief Tallmer Wise said, barring any emergencies, this would be sufficient for the remainder of the year.

U. S. District Court Judge Mell G. Underwood continued the case last June to give attorneys for the boy and the government to file briefs.

Gusik's attorneys charged he had been deprived of his constitutional rights by an Army court martial under Gen. John C. H. Lee, now retired. Gusik's original life sentence was commuted to 16 years in the federal reformatory at Chillicothe.

Ouster Of Chief Opens In Court

YOUNGSTOWN, Sept. 8—Hearings were to get underway here today in a suit which seeks to oust Police Chief Edward J. Allen Jr.

The suit, filed by Peter Papola, a factory worker, charges that Allen's appointment violated the state constitution provision requiring that he be a resident of Ohio.

Allen, a former police sergeant on the Erie, Pa., police force, was made chief when Mayor Charles P. Henderson took office last Jan. 1 on a "smash the racket" platform.

22-Year-Old Marriage Ends

A divorce decree handed Lloyd J. Fisher in Pickaway County common pleas court brought an end to his 22 years of married life with Opal L. Fisher, who was found guilty of gross neglect.

Under a prearranged agreement between the two parties, Mrs. Fisher was ordered to pay her husband $500 and surrender three life insurance policies taken out on Fisher.

In turn, he gave up any claim to personal property belonging to them and was directed to sign a quit claim deed to her for any of his interest in their real estate.

The court returned Mrs. Fisher to her former name of Opal L. Caskey.

Husband Seeks To Shed Mate

Suit to dissolve an eight-year-old marriage has been filed in Pickaway County common pleas court by Loring G. Eldridge whose petition accuses his wife of gross neglect of duty.

It was stated he married Mary L. Eldridge on Sept. 30, 1940, in Greenup, Ky., and that they have no children. The petition declared she refused to live with Eldridge since his return from the Army in 1943.

He is asking that his wife be returned to her former name of Mary Lou Shaw.

Legal Fee Offer Hiked $2,500 By City Council is no money available for such purposes. The city has 60 days in which to accept or reject the Replegle bid.

Leist said the $60,000 in bonds was to be used for the new gallery and for a new mainline Scioto River crossing west of Circleville. Engineers have declared the present crossing unusable.

Meanwhile, John Mader, a member of the board of public utilities told council he was in favor of delaying the matter and several councilmen were in favor of letting the case go to court.

It was the general feeling among those councilmen that the court would establish a fair payment to the two attorneys and that the court order would serve as a legal basis for all future negotiations.

Already the city has used $460,000 of the authorized $550,000 bond issue approved for water department maintenance, repair and improvement projects.

Originally the attorneys demanded fees and expenses totaling approximately $20,000. Gerhardt said. Of this total, $5,000 was for expenses alone for telephone calls, trips to Chicago, stenographic help and a long list of other items which were spent in getting water service.

LAST FALL, City Auditor Lillian Young was told by a state examiner whom she identified as R. B. Sullivan not to pay any of the legal fees unless accompanied by a court order, she reported.

At that time Gerhardt supported her when he said the examiner could advise her but actually he has no jurisdiction over the matter, he said.

The motion to offer $13,000 for payment of legal fees was passed by council 5-0. Councilmen Robert Adkins and Boyd Horn abstained from casting their ballots. Adkins is a brother of Attorney Adkins.

that the Soviet general would fail to keep his given word.

"SAFE CONDUCT" was guaranteed by a telephone understanding between Gens. Kotikov and Ganeval.

"The French military government therefore expects the policemen will be liberated in accordance with these assurances."

Soviet sources said the men were arrested because they lacked identification.

Twenty Russian military policemen and 100 civilian police swarmed over the French convoy from behind buildings six blocks from the city hall where the Soviets had erected road blocks. It was not known if the German police were armed.

Earlier, Soviet Berlin Commandant Gen. Alexander G. Kotikov had agreed in reply to a French protest to permit the French trucks to evacuate the Western police from the city hall where they had resisted Soviet arrest since Monday.

Eyewitnesses said the ambush was directed by the same Soviet captain who led Russian military police raids recently into the American sector ostensibly to round up black market operators.

Western police also were taken in those raids and never released.

Amnesia Victim Stumps Police

COLUMBUS, Sept. 8—A frail, elderly man sat forlornly in the Columbus police station today, his expensive clothing rumpled, and pondered over the only two words he could clearly recall from his past.

They were "wedding," and "school."

The courteous, obviously well-educated man was found wandering near the Scioto river Sunday night.

Asked to write all he could remember of himself, he put down "wedding," "school," and signed his name to the records simply as "Pop."

107-Year-Old Law On Auction Cribs Upheld

TOLEDO, Sept. 8—Ohio's 107-year-old law governing auctioneers is constitutional.

That was the ruling yesterday by Lucas County Common Pleas Judge John G. Carey, but the judge refused to order any action to enforce the statute in the case of Earl Greiner, operator of a Toledo car auction.

After Common Pleas Judge Harvey Straub rejected Greiner's previous attack on the constitutionality of the law March 4, Judge Carey observed that the addition of the name of the county treasurer, auditor and sheriff to Greiner's suit made no difference in the issue.

Judge Carey also turned down the plea of County Prosecutor Joel S. Rhinefort for an injunction restraining Greiner from operating his auction, ruling that this matter would not be considered with Greiner's present suit.

Rhinefort then informed the court that he would file another suit in a day or so for temporary and permanent injunctions against Greiner.

The auction law required tax payment of two percent of every $100 of sales.

Ohio Pours Out Farm Produce

4 Of Each 100 Pounds From Here

COLUMBUS, Sept. 8 — About four pounds out of each 100 pounds of all U. S. total farm goods are produced on Ohio farms, and the Buckeye State is contributing its share in 1943 to set a record for the greatest amount of food and feed ever produced in any nation in any year.

Farmers were told that food would win the war and make the peace. Since that statement was made, farm production has been kept at levels which no one would have believed possible in prewar days; and they have topped all those previous efforts by the harvests already in and those to be gathered later this year.

Corn and soybeans still need a little more time to be called safe from frost, but the chance of frost damage to Ohio corn is about as remote this year as it ever can be. Rural economists at Ohio State University predict the largest Ohio corn crop ever produced and a near record amount of soybeans.

Ohio farmers market most of their corn as livestock or poultry products and sell only a small percentage of it as cash grain. The immense crop to be harvested means better prospects for the production of meat, milk, and eggs in 1943 than would have been possible with only an average crop. The soybeans will provide a high protein feed for livestock after oil has been extracted from the beans.

THE ANNUAL average farm production since the beginning of the war has been 30 percent greater than the prewar average. With less help and with constantly deteriorating equipment, farmers in Ohio and in every other state have laid on the line the munitions which would win the war and make the peace.

There is no black market nor any gray market in foods. Any citizen can buy at any retail store or can drive into the country and obtain produce at the farms. No farmer nor any farm organization can set a price on farm produce at terminal markets. The price is set by consumers, and there is plenty of food for every U. S. citizen and for use in relieving distress in other nations.

Briggs Closed By Tiny Strike

DETROIT, Sept. 8 — Eight Briggs Manufacturing Co. plants in Detroit, the auto industry's main body suppliers, were closed today by a strike of 170 plant protection men.

A company spokesman said 25,000 employees were sent home when production workers refused to cross picket lines set up by the striking plant guards.

The protection men, members of the Amalgamated Plant Guard Workers Local 114 are protesting stalemated contract negotiations.

Truman To Get Railway Backing

CLEVELAND, Sept. 8 — President Truman and Sen. Alben Barkley will have the support of A. F. Whitney's Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in the coming November elections.

Whitney announced that union delegates, representing some 250,000 members, with the exception of California, unanimously endorsed the Truman-Barkley ticket at an all-day meeting here yesterday.

FRESH BLOOD A MUST FOR FREE ENERGY

Do you feel like you are tied to a drag every time you try to do something? If so, don't let a low blood count hold you down when you may release vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell. Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease. To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients. Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloating and give off that sour food taste. Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

'Jail On Wheels' Is Result Of Cop's Ambition

"I want every boy and girl in America to see how futile it is to make crime a career," is the power behind Sheriff J. Edward Slavin's $15,000 "Jail on Wheels" visiting Circleville Tuesday and Wednesday.

Sheriff Slavin, a native of Connecticut, set out to reduce juvenile delinquency throughout the country after retiring from office ending 12 years of service.

His objective in the "Jail on Wheels" is the "First Offender Movement" for the prevention of the first crime among youth through adherence to his creed of cooperation with teachers, officers and schools.

The "Jail on Wheels", capable of 60 miles per hour, is about the size of a cross-country bus. It includes crime fighting apparatus common in FBI offices and police laboratories.

A list of the equipment on display for the public includes a drunkometer, police weapons, leg irons, handcuffs, ironclaws, bullet-proof vests, detection powder, ultra-violet ray equipment and complete teletype service.

City Solons Set To Vote $25,000 To Give 4 Areas More Sewers

A $25,000 bond issue to be obtained within the 10-mill limitation at a rate of one-half percent of one mill will come to a vote at next meeting of Circleville city council.

Councilman Robert Adkins instigated the motion Tuesday night before council as a means of affecting necessary funds to effect sanitary and storm sewers in four areas of the city.

Since the bond issue will come within the 10 mill limitation, a public vote will not be required. City Solicitor George Gerhardt said it also will not mean an increase in Circleville resident taxes.

Gerhardt was directed by council to draw up the necessary legal papers covering the steps needed to conduct the bond issue. Council gave its unanimous approval to Adkins motion.

The four areas to be affected are on Hayward avenue, sanitary and storm sewers and a new sewage pump station on Hargus Creek at the Lancaster Pike crossing, on Barnes avenue and on Logan street.

If the bond issue reaches final approval in council, it will mean the partial end of one of Circleville's greatest needs—that of additional and improved sewage.

Construction of the sewage pump station is estimated to cost in the neighborhood of $16,000 and will allow the extension of sewers on Watt street.

The pump station also will take in approximately 25 new customers on the east side of Hargus Creek including the Pickaway County Fairgrounds.

Construction of the pump station was advised last Winter by Burgess and Niple consulting engineers of Columbus. They declared the expansion of Circleville warranted additional sewage facilities.

GOVERNING BERLIN

WHATEVER the outcome, the meetings of the four military governors of Berlin have been a valuable practical result of the long talks in Moscow. It was at this level, in the council of the four governors, that the final breakdown of relations between Russia and the Western Powers occurred. Probably it was made inevitable by the suspension, some two years ago, of conferences among the four nations at the diplomatic level.

Apparently the governors have been working at the details of adjusting Berlin financial machinery to the problems created by revision of the German currency. This should have been done by them in the first place, at the time the currency revision was being drafted. It is point less now to try to fix the blame for not doing so, as the cause was involved in the overall deterioration of liaison and negotiations among the four powers.

Far more important is whether or not it has been learned that honest liaison and intelligent negotiations must be maintained constantly, so long as the joint occupation of any territory continues. With the best of negotiation there is no way of guaranteeing that seemingly insoluble problems will not arise. But sound diplomacy should be able to recognize the existence of unsolved problems and prevent them from becoming centers of crucial situations such as that in Berlin this Summer.

RESERVE STATE FUNDS

IF THE states were as wise as prudent individuals, they would take advantage of today's flush times and lay money aside for welfare and health funds, to be used in less prosperous days, according to the advice of Harold C. Ostertag, a New York legislator, addressing a regional conference on social welfare.

These funds are going to be needed, that much is certain. And when the need comes, taxpayers may not be able to meet the necessary payments to keep the welfare funds up. A reserve would largely solve this difficulty.

Constant vigilance would be necessary to make sure that these funds were not raided ahead of the time when they were really needed.

Installment buying is to be made a little harder after Sept. 19. But American housewives will be relieved to know that as yet no steps are planned to end one of the two or three most popular phrases in the United States: "Charge it."

A chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous, the organization which has cured thousands of confirmed drunkards, has been started in Great Britain. This is one American importation to which no nation should find objection.

Congress, White House Take
Few Steps to Curb Inflation

Interest Rate on U. S. Bonds
Will Remain at 2.5 Per Cent

Special to Central Press*

WASHINGTON—The Republican Congress and the Democratic administration are both taking several minor steps to curb inflation.

However, officials on both sides of the political fence are not likely to do anything about the one measure virtually guaranteed to slash the price spiral.

This is the policy of supporting the government bond market.

The Federal Reserve open market committee, which is under administration management, is pegging the interest rate on long-term government bonds at 2.5 per cent. This rate is to be maintained.

Administration officials fear that if they pulled the plugs on government bonds the bottom would drop out of the market, with a consequent business paralysis that might plunge the nation into a major depression.

Oddly enough, this view is shared by a number of influential Republicans in Congress. Senator Robert A. Taft (R), Ohio, thinks there is ground for the fear.

Thus the actions to be taken simply will skim around the edge of the credit picture. Already the interest rate on short-term government securities has been increased and the Federal Reserve Bank discount rate has been raised in important centers.

The effect of these actions, however, is primarily psychological and not highly important.

● FEEBLE?—Speaking of inflation, the GOP anti-inflation pro-

These Days

Great oaks from little acorns grow and enormous catastrophies often come from what politicians call little mistakes. If the whole of Napoleon's career could be ruined by a miscalculation as to rainfall, all the world is still in turmoil because Franklin D. Roosevelt misunderstood the psychology of Stalin.

His "grand design" was to do everything that Stalin wanted him to do so that in the end Stalin would be ashamed not to do what Roosevelt wanted him to do. But Roosevelt did not know what he wanted Stalin to do. In a word, whereas Stalin set out to conquer Europe, Roosevelt was improvising a policy as he went along.

Thus at Teheran and Yalta, he permitted Stalin to arrange for Russian victories in Europe and Asia which in the total of history appear more horrible than anything Hitler imagined, and at Potsdam, Harry Truman, new to the job, uncertain as to our commitments, agreed to the implementation of Teheran and Yalta.

So Berlin became the hub of these small mistakes which ballooned into a world catastrophe. The United States was in a position to capture and hold Berlin, and had our troops not been halted, as a courtesy to Soviet Russia, the history of Europe in the year 1948 would have been different. But they were halted and the Russians were permitted to march in ahead of us, although they were slow in moving up their lines. It was one of those "After you, Gaston," affairs with nothing but discourtesy on the other side.

And from then on, we have had trouble in Berlin and Germany and the United States has been pushed and shoved, insulted and humiliated and we have taken this umbrage without adequate retaliation, not so much because we feared that the Russians would fight us, as that Mr. Truman and Mr. Marshall were covering up the tragic mistakes of Teheran and Yalta and Potsdam. It is like the liar who has to pyramid his lies to keep the original falsehood from being discovered.

So now we are in Moscow again and we are renegotiating the Berlin settlement which was supposed to have been arranged at Potsdam. In a word, we are starting all over again concerning Germany, three years after the war was supposed to be over.

The reason for starting all over again is that Soviet Russia contests our claim to victory and maintains that Russia alone is entitled to Germany—to make of Germany a fief, as Poland, Rumania, Hungary and other lands have become Muscovite fiefs.

Our government is so fearful that the American people will discover what a mess we made at Teheran, Yalta and Potsdam and all the intermediate conferences. The Russians know exactly how to use that fear. For instance, the Russians are now playing big their threat to drive us out of Berlin. They send a jeep into terrorize the streets; they make a fuss over a little girl suffering from polio in an American hospital; they arrest our officers; they create a mass movement to seize the City Hall. It is all play-pidgin. It is truly a red herring, although Mr. Truman may not recognize the odor.

What they want from us is an agreement for economic penetration into Germany. What they want is control of Germany's currency. These two steps will give them Germany as similar steps gave them Manchuria. They know that these are complicated subjects and will appear unimportant to most Americans. So they offer Mr. Truman an empty victory—one of those small gram, widely regarded as "feeble," actually may go farther than its backers wish, in some respects.

For instance, the requirement for a one-third down payment on installment buying will make the first payment on a new "low-priced" car from $600 to $800.

A comparatively small percentage of people live in such a way that they can provide this amount of cash at any given time from their earnings.

In other words, millions will be forced out of the new automobile and heavy goods market unless some general means of providing the down payment is found.

Probably the final effect will depend on the extent to which banks and loan companies are willing to fill in the gap.

● INVENTORS' NOTE—The venerable United States patent office is preparing to modernize its time-honored procedure in order to take care of the oncoming flood of atomic age inventions.

Making the face-lifting necessary are these facts:

The office has a huge backlog of 160,000 patent applications still unprocessed; it takes one to two years from the time an inventor applies for a patent until he gets one.

If inventors want to put their creations into use before they get their patents, they have only the sketchy protection offered by the familiar "patent pending."

● SPLINTER PARTIES—The two Democratic splinter parties—Henry A. Wallace's Progressives and the states rights Dixiecrats—are gathering steam for their presidential campaigns.

Behind the banners of J. Strom Thurmond and Fielding Wright the Dixiecrats will "kickoff" soon on a northward invasion to the border states.

Thurmond, presidential candidate and South Carolina governor, and Wright, vice presidential candidate and Mississippi governor, are expected to speak in Kentucky, home state of Senator Alben Barkley, President Truman's running mate.

They may even go into President Truman's home state of Missouri. Wallace and his running mate, Idaho's Senator Glenn Taylor, will campaign from New York to California.

Treating Cerebral Accidents

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

LIFE is threatened at any time when circulation to the cerebrum or brain is impaired and, unless prompt action is taken, the brain itself may be so seriously damaged that repair is impossible. The most frequent emergencies of this kind are created by what are known as cerebral accidents, such as embolism, thrombosis or hemorrhage.

We speak of cerebral embolism when a bit of a blood clot from some other part of the body is carried to the brain and lodges in one of its tiny blood vessels.

Formation of Clot

Cerebral thrombosis means the formation of a clot within one of the blood vessels of the brain. This type of accident usually is confined to people with high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries; also, in these cases, the patient is unconscious. Here, too, the spinal fluid is normal but its pressure is likely to be increased.

High blood pressure and hardened arteries also predispose to a brain hemorrhage, which nearly always comes on suddenly; in such cases, the spinal fluid is frequently bloody and the pressure of the fluid is increased.

As I said previously, patients with these types of disturbances require prompt treatment. Oxygen may be administered and often is found helpful. If mucus collects in the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs, it may have to be sucked out. Sometimes atropine is administered to help check the secretions.

If the patient remains unconscious for 24 to 48 hours, he may have to be fed through a tube passed into the stomach. Fluids should be kept up by administering them either under the skin or into a vein. There are various quieting drugs which the physician may prescribe, such as phenobarbital. Of course, certain disorders, such as heart failure and high blood pressure, which may accompany the brain condition, must also be treated.

Recently, a form of treatment involving the injection of a local anesthetic into the structure known as the stellate ganglion has been suggested. This treatment helps to relieve the slowing down of the circulation in the affected area and, if used, it should be repeated at least once every 24 hours.

Cerebral thrombosis, embolism and hemorrhage into the brain are all critical conditions. The patient should be removed to a hospital at once, if possible, because materials are at hand there to carry out the emergency treatment needed to save life, and the patient can have the advantage of skilled care and watchfulness.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. S.: I have a vein on my forehead which is suddenly becoming hard. Would you please suggest what may be done?

Answer: You are in need of an examination by a physician to determine if a blood clot has formed in the vein.

There is no particular treatment necessary unless the vein is causing symptoms.

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

"IT HAPPENED about a couple of hours ago, they think," said Graves. "Nobody heard the shot. The woman of the house was out shopping."

Poirot was frowning, looking down on the quiet figure with the small scorched wound in the right temple.

"Any idea why he should do it, M. Poirot?" asked Graves.

He was respectful to Poirot because he had seen the Superintendent being respectful—though his private opinion was that Poirot was one of these frightful old dog outs.

Poirot replied absently: "Yes—yes, there was a very good reason. That is not the difficulty."

His glance shifted to a small table at Major Porter's left hand. There was a big solid glass ash-tray on it, with a pipe and a box of matches. Nothing there. His eye was on the pipe.

"It was very tidy. Papers neatly pigeonholed. A small leather blotter in the corner, a pen tray with a pen and two pencils, a box of paper clips and a book of stamps. All very neat and orderly. An orderly life and an orderly death—of course—that was it—that was what was missing!"

He said to Graves: "Didn't he leave any note?—any letter for the Coroner?"

Graves shook his head.

"No, he didn't—sort of thing one would have expected an ex-Army man to do."

"Yes, that is very curious."

Punctilious in life, Major Porter had not been punctilious in death. It was all wrong, Poirot thought, that Porter had left no note.

Graves adged slightly. "Anything more you want to see?"

Poirot shook his head and followed Graves through the room.

On the stairs they met the landlady. She was clearly enjoying her own state of agitation and started a voluble discourse at once. Graves adroitly detached himself and left Poirot to receive the full spate.

"Can't seem to catch my breath properly. 'Eart, that's what it is. Angina Pectoris, my mother died of—fell down dead as she was crossing the Caledonian Market. Nearly dropped down myself when I found him—Oh, it did give me a turn! Never suspected anything of the kind, though 'e 'ad been low in 'is spirits for a long time. Worried over money, I think, and didn't eat enough to keep himself alive. Not that he'd ever accept a bite from us. And then yesterday he 'ad to go down to a place in Oastshire—Wormsley Vale to give evidence in an inquest. Prayed about all last night. Up and down—up and down. A murdered gentleman it was and a friend of his, by all accounts. Poor dear, it did upset him. Up and down, up and down. And when I was out doing my bit of shopping—and 'aving to queue ever so long for the fish, I went up to see if he'd like a nice cuppa tea—and there he was, poor gentleman, the revolver dropped out of his hand, leaning back in his chair. Gave me an awful turn it did. 'Ad to 'ave the police in and everything. What's the world coming to, that's what I say?"

Poirot said slowly: "The world is becoming a difficult place to live in—except for the strong."

It was past eight o'clock when Poirot got back to the Stag. He found a note from Frances Cloade asking him to come and see her. He went out at once.

She was waiting for him in the drawing room. He had not seen that room before. The open windows gave on a walled garden with pear trees in bloom. There were bowls of tulips on the tables. The old furniture shone with beeswax and elbow grease and the brass of the fender and coal scuttle were brightly gleaming.

It was, Poirot thought, a very beautiful room.

"You said I should want you, M. Poirot. You were quite right. There is something that must be told—and I think you are the best person to tell it to."

"It is always easier, Madame, to tell a thing to someone who already has a very good idea of what it is."

"You think you know what I am going to say?"

Poirot nodded.

"Since when—"

She left the question unfinished, but he replied promptly: "Since the moment when I saw the photograph of your father. The features of your family are very strongly marked. One could not doubt that you and he were of the same family. The resemblance was equally strong in the man who came here calling himself Enoch Arden."

"Yes—yes, you're right—although poor Charles had a beard. He was my second cousin, M. Poirot, somewhat the black sheep of the family. I never knew him very well, but we played together as children—and now I've brought him to his death—an ugly sordid death."

She was silent for a moment or two. Poirot said gently: "You will tell me—"

She roused herself.

"Yes, the story has got to be told. We were desperate for money—that's where it begins. My husband—my husband was in serious trouble—the worst kind of trouble. Disgrace, perhaps imprisonment, lay ahead of him—still lies ahead of him for that matter. Now understand this, M. Poirot, the plan I made and carried out was my plan, my husband had nothing to do with it. It wasn't his sort of plan in any case—it would have been far too risky. But I've never minded taking risks. And I've always been, I suppose, rather unscrupulous. First of all, let me say, I applied to Rosaleen Cloade for a loan. I don't know whether, left to herself, she would have given it to me or not. But her brother stepped in. He was in an ugly mood and he was, or so I thought, unnecessarily insulting. When I thought of this scheme I had no scruples at all about putting it into operation.

"To explain matters, I must tell you that my husband had repeated to me last year a rather interesting piece of information which he had heard at his club. You were there, I believe, so I needn't repeat it in detail. But it opened up the possibility that Rosaleen's first husband might not be dead—and of course in that case, she would have no right at all to any of Gordon's money. It was, of course, only a vague possibility, but it was there at the back of our minds, a sort of outside chance that might possibly come true. And it flashed into my mind that something could be done by using that possibility. Charles, my cousin, was in the country, down on his luck. He's been in prison, I'm afraid, and he wasn't a scrupulous person, but he did well in the war. I put the proposition before him. It was, of course, blackmail, neither more nor less. But we thought that we had a good chance of getting away with it. At worst, I thought, David Hunter would refuse to play. I didn't think that he would go to the police about it—people like him aren't fond of the police."

Frances Cloade's voice hardened.

"Our scheme went well," she went on. "David fell for it better than we hoped. Charles, of course, could not definitely pose as 'Robert Underday.' Rosaleen could give that away in a moment. But fortunately she went up to London and that left Charles a chance of at least suggesting that he might be Robert Underday. Well, as I say, David appeared to be falling for the scheme. He was to bring the money on Tuesday evening at nine o'clock. Instead—"

Her voice faltered.

"We should have known that David was a dangerous person. Charles is dead—murdered—and for me he would be alive. I sent him to his death."

"You can imagine what I have felt like ever since."

"Nevertheless," said Poirot, "you were quick enough to see a further development of the scheme? It was you who induced Major Porter to identify your cousin as 'Robert Underday'?"

But at once she broke out vehemently: "No, I swear to you, no. Not that! No one was more astonished—astonished? We were dumbfounded when this Major Porter came down and gave evidence that Charles—Charles!—was Robert Underday. I couldn't understand it—I still can't understand it!"

"But someone went to Major Porter. Someone persuaded him or bribed him—to identify the dead man as Underday?"

Frances said decisively: "It was not I. And it was not Jeremy. Neither of us would do such a thing. Oh, I dare! You think that because I was ready to blackmail, that I would stoop just as easily to fraud. But in my mind the two things are worlds apart. You must understand that I felt—indeed I still feel—that we have a right to a portion of Gordon's money."

IT HAPPENED TODAY

In World War II, on Sept. 8, 1941, Leningrad, Russia, was encircled by the German armies, laying siege to that city. Huey Pierce Long, senator from Louisiana, and former governor, was shot at the state capital, Baton Rouge, on Sept. 8, 1935. Richard Coeur de Lion—King Richard I of England—was born on this date in 1157, and Peter Stuyvesant, Dutch governor of New Amsterdam (New York) was born Sept. 8, 1592.

YOUR FUTURE

The month ahead may find you somewhat less active in social matters than usual. Favorable and also some unfavorable vibrations operate this coming year, indicating some good fortune and happiness and some misfortune.

IT'S BEEN SAID

Often do the spirits of great events stride on before the events, and in today already walks tomorrow—Coleridge.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Happy birthday on this date to Senator Robert A. Taft and Gen. Jacob Devers, U. S. A.

MODERN MANNERS

If you are writing a note to your family doctor, who is also your friend, begin it "Dear Doctor Hill." Do not abbreviate the doctor.

Factographs

During World War II, rapid industrialization of India took place. More than one million tons of steel a year are now produced there.

The wife of James A. Garfield, Lucretia Rudolph was born in 1832, and died in 1918. She and Garfield were schoolmates.

HOW'D YOU MAKE OUT?

- No.
- Maumet, marionette and puppet; marmoset is a monkey.
- In the heel.
- The Bonhomme Richard.
- Sixteen.

GOVERNING BERLIN

WHATEVER the outcome, the meetings of the four military governors of Berlin have been a valuable practical result of the long talks in Moscow. It was at this level, in the council of the four governors, that the final breakdown of relations between Russia and the Western Powers occurred. Probably it was made inevitable by the suspension, some two years ago, of conferences among the four nations at the diplomatic level.

Apparently the governors have been working at the details of adjusting Berlin financial machinery to the problems created by revision of the German currency. This should have been done by them in the first place, at the time the currency revision was being drafted. It is point less now to try to fix the blame for not doing so, as the cause was involved in the overall deterioration of liaison and negotiations among the four powers.

Far more important is whether or not it has been learned that honest liaison and intelligent negotiations must be maintained constantly, so long as the joint occupation of any territory continues. With the best of negotiation there is no way of guaranteeing that seemingly insoluble problems will not arise. But sound diplomacy should be able to recognize the existence of unsolved problems and prevent them from becoming centers of crucial situations such as that in Berlin this Summer.

RESERVE STATE FUNDS

IF THE states were as wise as prudent individuals, they would take advantage of today's flush times and lay money aside for welfare and health funds, to be used in less prosperous days, according to the advice of Harold C. Ostertag, a New York legislator, addressing a regional conference on social welfare.

These funds are going to be needed, that much is certain. And when the need comes, taxpayers may not be able to meet the necessary payments to keep the welfare funds up. A reserve would largely solve this difficulty.

Constant vigilance would be necessary to make sure that these funds were not raided ahead of the time when they were really needed.

Installment buying is to be made a little harder after Sept. 19. But American housewives will be relieved to know that as yet no steps are planned to end one of the two or three most popular phrases in the United States: "Charge it."

A chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous, the organization which has cured thousands of confirmed drunkards, has been started in Great Britain. This is one American importation to which no nation should find objection.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Great oaks from little acorns grow and enormous catastrophes often come from what politicians call little mistakes. If the whole of Napoleon's career could be ruined by a miscalculation as to rainfall, all the world is still in turmoil because Franklin D. Roosevelt misunderstood the psychology of Stalin.

His "grand design" was to do everything that Stalin wanted him to do so that in the end Stalin would be ashamed not to do what Roosevelt wanted him to do. But Roosevelt did not know what he wanted Stalin to do. In a word, whereas Stalin set out to conquer Europe, Roosevelt was improvising a policy as he went along.

Thus at Teheran and Yalta, he permitted Stalin to arrange for Russian victories in Europe and Asia which in the total of history appear more horrible than anything Hitler imagined, and at Potsdam, Harry Truman, new to the job, uncertain as to our commitments, agreed to the implementation of Teheran and Yalta.

So Berlin became the hub of these small mistakes which ballooned into a world catastrophe. The United States was in a position to capture and hold Berlin, and had our troops not been halted, as a courtesy to Soviet Russia, the history of Europe in the year 1948 would have been different. But they were halted and the Russians were permitted to march in ahead of us, although they were slow in moving up their lines. It was one of those "After you, Gaston," affairs with nothing but discourtesy on the other side.

The old furniture shone with beeswax and elbow grease and the brass of the fender and coal scuttle were brightly gleaming.

It was, Poirot thought, a very beautiful room.

"You said I should want you, M. Poirot. You were quite right. There is something that must be told—and I think you are the best person to tell it to."

"It is always easier, Madame, to tell a thing to someone who already has a very good idea of what it is."

"You think you know what I am going to say?"

Poirot nodded.

"Since when?"

She left the question unfinished, but he replied promptly:

"Since the moment when I saw the photograph of your father. The features of your family are very strongly marked. One could not doubt that you and he were of the same family. The resemblance was equally strong in the man who came here calling himself Enoch Arden."

"Yes—yes, you're right—although poor Charles had a beard. He was my second cousin, M. Poirot, somewhat the black sheep of the family. I never knew him very well, but we played together as children—and now I've brought to his death—an ugly sordid death."

She was silent for a moment or two, Poirot said gently: "You will tell me."

She roused herself.

"Yes, the story has got to be told. We were desperate for money—that's where it begins. My husband—my husband was in serious trouble—the worst kind of trouble. Disgrace, perhaps imprisonment, lay ahead of him—still lies ahead of him for that matter. Now understand this, M. Poirot, the plan I made and he carried out was my plan, my husband had nothing to do with it. It wasn't his sort of plan in any case—it would have been far too risky. But I've never minded taking risks. And I've always been, I suppose, rather unscrupulous. First of all, let me say, I applied to Rosaleen Clode for a loan. I don't know whether, left to herself, she would have given it to me or not. But her brother stepped in. He was in an ugly mood and he was so I thought, unnecessarily insulting. When I thought of this scheme I had no scruples at all about putting it into operation."

"To explain matters, I must tell you that my husband had repeated to me last year a rather interesting piece of information which he had heard at his club. You were there, I believe, so I needn't repeat it in detail. But it opened up the possibility that Rosaleen's first husband might not be dead—and of course in that case, she would have no right at all to any of Gordon's money. It was, of course, only a vague possibility, but it was there at the back of our minds, a sort of outside chance that might possibly come true. And it flashed into my mind that something could be done by using that possibility. Charles, my cousin, was in the country, down on his luck. He's been in prison, I'm afraid, and he wasn't a scrupulous person, but he did well in the war. I put the proposition before him. It was, of course, blackmail, neither more nor less. But we thought that we had a good chance of getting away with it. At worst I thought, David Hunter would refuse to play. I didn't think that he would go to the police about it—people like him aren't fond of the police."

Frances Clode's voice hardened.

"Our scheme went well," she went on. "David fell for it better than we hoped. Charles, of course, could not definitely pose as 'Robert Underday.' Rosaleen could give that away in a moment. But fortunately she went up to London and that left Charles a chance of at least suggesting that he might be Robert Underday. Well, as I say, David appeared to be falling for the scheme. He was to bring the money on Tuesday evening at nine o'clock. Instead—"

Her voice faltered.

"We should have known that David was a dangerous person. Charles is dead—murdered—and for me he would be alive. I sent him to his death."

"After a little she went on: 'You can imagine what I have felt like ever since.'"

"Nevertheless," said Poirot, "you were quick enough to see a further development of the scheme? It was you who induced Major Porter to identify your cousin as 'Robert Underday'?"

But at once she broke out vehemently:

"No, I swear to you, no. Not that! No one was more astonished—astonished? We were dumb-founded when this Major Porter came down and gave evidence that Charles—Charles was Robert Underday. I couldn't understand it—I still can't understand it!"

"But someone went to Major Porter. Someone persuaded him or bribed him—to identify the dead man as Underday?"

Frances said decisively:

"It was not I. And it was not Jeremy. Neither of us would do such a thing. Oh, I daresay that sounds absurd to you! You think that because I was ready to blackmail, that I would stoop just as easily to fraud. But in my mind the two things are worlds apart. You must understand that I felt indeed I still feel—that we have a right to a portion of Gordon's money."

IT HAPPENED TODAY

In World War II, on Sept. 8, 1941, Leningrad, Russia, was encircled by the German armies, laying siege to that city. Huey Pierce Long, senator from Louisiana, and former governor, was shot at the state capital, Baton Rouge, on Sept. 8, 1935. Richard Coeur de Lion—King Richard I of England—was born on this date in 1157, and Peter Stuyvesant, Dutch governor of New Amsterdam (New York) was born Sept. 8, 1592.

YOUR FUTURE

The month ahead may find you somewhat less active in social matters than usual. Favorable and also some unfavorable vibrations operate this coming year, indicating some good fortune and happiness and some misfortune.

JOBS UPON A TIME

Bruno Walter, orchestra and opera conductor, made a piano-playing debut at the age of nine, in his native Germany, and was a conductor at 17. In pre-war years Walter conducted in Berlin, Vienna, Munich, Salzburg and Leipzig, but Hitler's anti-Semitic drive banished him from his native country and Vienna, London, Paris, Holland and the United States deluged him with offers.

Factographs

During World War II, rapid industrialization of India took place. More than one million tons of steel a year are now produced there.

The wife of James A. Garfield, Lucretia Rudolph was born in 1832, and died in 1918. She and Garfield were schoolmates.

HOW'D YOU MAKE OUT?

- No.
- Maumet, marionette and puppet; marmoset is a monkey.
- In the heel.
- The Bonhomme Richard.

Congress, White House Take Few Steps to Curb Inflation Interest Rate on U. S. Bonds Will Remain at 2.5 Per Cent

*Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The Republican Congress and the Democratic administration are both taking several minor steps to curb inflation.

However, officials on both sides of the political fence are not likely to do anything about the one measure virtually guaranteed to slash the price spiral.

This is the policy of supporting the government bond market. The Federal Reserve open market committee, which is under administration management, is pegging the interest rate on long-term government bonds at 2.5 per cent. This rate is to be maintained.

Administration officials fear that if they pulled the plugs on government bonds the bottom would drop out of the market, with a consequent business paralysis that might plunge the nation into a major depression.

Oddly enough, this view is shared by a number of influential Republicans in Congress. Senator Robert A. Taft (R), Ohio, thinks there is ground for the fear.

Thus the actions to be taken simply will skim around the edge of the credit picture. Already the interest rate on short-term government securities has been increased and the Federal Reserve Bank rediscount rate has been raised in important centers.

The effect of these actions, however, is primarily psychological and not highly important.

● FEEBLE?—Speaking of inflation, the GOP anti-inflation program, widely regarded as "feeble," actually may go farther than its backers wish, in some respects.

Senator Robert A. Taft

For instance, the requirement for a one-third down payment on installment buying will make the first payment on a new "low-priced" car from $600 to $800.

A comparatively small percentage of people live in such a way that they can provide this amount of cash at any given time from their earnings.

In other words, millions will be forced out of the new automobile and heavy goods market unless some general means of providing the down payment is found.

Probably the final effect will depend on the extent to which banks and loan companies are willing to fill in the gap.

● INVENTORS' NOTE—The venerable United States patent office is preparing to modernize its time-honored procedure in order to take care of the oncoming flood of atomic age inventions.

Making the face-lifting necessary are these facts: The office has a huge backlog of 160,000 patent applications still unprocessed; it takes one to two years from the time an inventor applies for a patent until he gets one.

If inventors want to put their creations into use before they get their patents, they have only the sketchy protection offered by the familiar "patent pending."

● SPLINTER PARTIES—The two Democratic splinter parties—Henry A. Wallace's Progressives and the states rights Dixiecrats—are gathering steam for their presidential campaigns.

Behind the banners of J. Strom Thurmond and Fielding Wright the Dixiecrats will "kickoff" soon on a northward invasion to the border states.

Thurmond, presidential candidate and South Carolina governor, and Wright, vice presidential candidate and Mississippi governor, are expected to speak in Kentucky, home state of Senator Alben Barkley, President Truman's running mate.

They may even go into President Truman's home state of Missouri. Wallace and his running mate, Idaho's Senator Glenn Taylor, will campaign from New York to California.

SECURITY SYSTEM IMPROVED

U.S. Clamping Tighter
Lid On Atomic Secrets

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8—A high military official has disclosed that the United States is tightening its guard over atomic secrets.

The official said the armed forces' special weapons section is stepping up its security measures over the A-bomb and other secret war potentials on three fronts.

He asserted that the security system has been improved "considerably" in the last few months but is "not yet 100 percent perfect."

The official revealed that the program involves bolstering of personnel security, guard forces and physical security.

Personnel security is being increased, he explained, because "our greatest problem is individuals who leak information either because they are disloyal, glib or careless."

TO COMBAT personnel leaks he said the services are relying on sterner loyalty tests and better "security education." The latter involves lectures, talks and pamphlets on what not to say and to whom not to say it. The official added:

"We are talking to our people more on ways which spies might obtain information without their being aware of it."

The military officer declared that the strength of the services' atomic guard forces is highly secret but asserted that "their numbers are being increased."

He said that the special weapons section also receives many atomic information requests—some of which appear harmless yet involve the closest-guarded secrets.

As examples of the more ludicrous requests, he cited the following:

1. A farmer wrote a very carefully penned letter asking for some pint-sized atomic bombs to blast tree stumps in his field.

2. A person who appeared to be very learned said he had developed a cheap method of making fissionable materials and wanted to know if the government would tell him its methods for comparison.

Also, there are many people who want to know why a small A-bomb can't be dropped on a hurricane or tornado to quiet the disturbance.

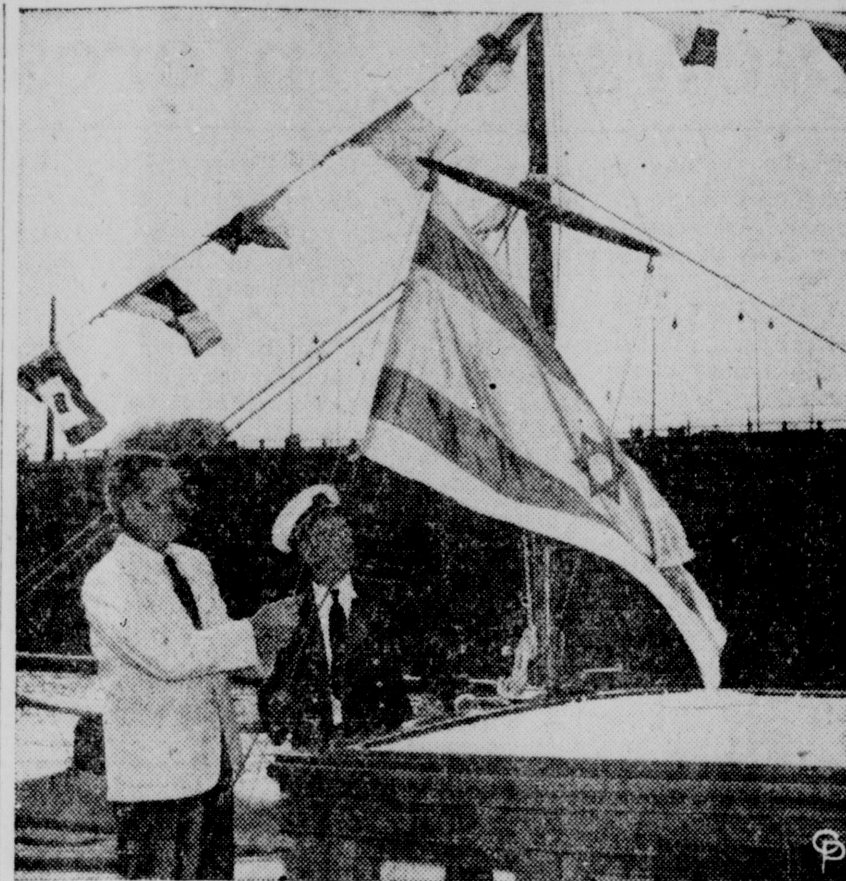

Fishermen Fined
By Court Here

When haled before Magistrate Oscar Root in justice of peace court, Gilbert Lavall, 41, of Lockbourne, and Miss Martha McKee, 25, of Shadyside each was fined $30 and costs on two counts.

The pair was arrested by Clarence Francis, state game protector, for fishing with more than one trotline and for failing to display the required metal tags.

Michigan Man
Is Fined After Traffic Mishap

William Holbrook of Ecorse, Mich., was fined $25 and costs in mayor's court Tuesday for unsafe operation in connection with the two-car smashup on Route 104 north of Fox Postoffice Tuesday morning.

State Highway Patrolman C. E. Wells testified Holbrook had travelled at a speed greater than safe considering the slippery conditions of the road.

The patrolman said Holbrook failed to negotiate a curve on the slippery road early Tuesday, the rear of his auto whipping into the front of a car driven by Richard Rosenberger of Columbus. Rosenberger and two passengers in the Holbrook auto were injured.

Donald Lewis of Columbus was fined $25 and costs also in the Tuesday court by Mayor Thurman I. Miller after State Highway Patrolman Charles Watters told the court Lewis had driven without operator's permit.

The patrolman said Lewis had made no attempt to apply for a permit.

Alimony Given
Pending Hearing

Pending the final outcome of her divorce suit, Esther L. Cornwell has been granted $16 per week temporary alimony and support in Pickaway County common pleas court.

Judge William D. Radcliff also ordered the defendant, Thomas L. Cornwell, to pay $75 toward Mrs. Cornwell's legal expenses. The Cornwells have one child.

Repairs Readied
For Postoffice

Circleville postoffice is soon slated to receive a new beauty treatment.

According to A. Hulse Hays, postmaster, bids are to be invited for work on roofs, metal work, cash drawers, masonry, windows, driveway, sidewalk and curbing within the next two weeks.

The repair work is expected to cover such items as resetting coping around the perimeter of the building, new sash chains in the windows, three cash drawer tracks, basement stairway, paint spouting and flagpole and several cement blocks in the driveway.

Two roofs are expected to need repair, an asphaltic roofing to the rear and a metal roof over the loading platform.

Six Witnesses
To Tell Story

LANCASTER, Sept. 8—Six Columbus witnesses will testify before the Fairfield County grand jury which meets here tomorrow to investigate the notorious "hot meat" case involving the theft of thousands of dollars worth of meat from the Swift and Co. plant in Columbus.

They are Assistant County Prosecutor T. Vincent Martin, Swift Executives G. R. German and A. O. Lindsey, Former Sheriff's Deputy James Worster, Deputy Robert Neds and Herrel H. Jeffers.

Jeffers is one of the four men the Franklin County grand jury had indicted for the thefts.

The meat was said to have been sold to several prominent Lancaster and Fairfield County businessmen.

Amvets Plan
Booth At Fair

Circleville Amvets met in Hanley's Tuesday night to discuss plans for the coming Pickaway County Fair.

According to Acting Chairman James Price, the organization has secured space for a concession booth at the fair and plans to sell the "foot-long hot dogs."

The booth is to be part of a promotional plan to raise funds to secure clubrooms for the organization, which has grown to about 30 members.

Officers and other club functions are still on a temporary standing, according to organizers, since the state charter has not yet been assigned.

Importance Of Fly-Free Date Cited

Experts Warn Vigilance Needed

COLUMBUS, Sept. 8—Weather conditions which indicate a lot of Ohio wheat might be planted after an early harvest of corn or soybeans and an upturn in Hessian fly numbers in the state cause T. H. Parks, extension entomologist, Ohio State university, to urge farmers to postpone all wheat sowing until after the fly-free date for their county. Fly-free date in Pickaway County is Oct. 1.

Parks says records kept for the past 20 years prove that an upturn in the number of Hessian flies one year is followed by a greater increase the second year.

Usually, losses of wheat the second year are heavy enough so most farmers observe fly-free dates for seeding and the damage is reduced for several years. Hessian fly cannot be entirely eradicated because there always is some volunteer wheat which starts growing early enough to provide places for the fly to deposit its eggs. Some authorities claim harvesting with combines increases the amount of volunteer wheat, and therefore complicates the problem of Hessian fly control.

Parks says the heaviest fly infestation of all Ohio wheat, since records were kept occurred in 1932.

A SURVEY in that year showed fly larvae present in 35.5 percent of all wheat stalks in inspected fields. The larvae weaken the straw so it is likely to lodge before harvest time, and the heads either do not fill with grain or they are not picked up by the harvesting machinery. Field inspections in Stark, Tuscarawas and Holmes Counties in 1948 revealed 40 to 50 percent of wheat stalks infested with fly larvae. The average infestation was 8.8 percent in 22 counties, but it was only 3.4 percent in those same counties in 1947. The rise indicates a lot of Ohio wheat will be lost in 1949 unless fly-free seeding dates are more closely observed.

Judge Ponders Advice To Juror

NEWPORT, Ky., Sept. 8—Judge Ray L. Murphy of Newport considered a motion for a new trial today, claiming a woman juror asked advice from a priest before voting on the death penalty for condemned slayer William Necamp, 26.

The claim was made in an affidavit signed by Necamp's sister, Mrs. Helen Courtney, who said the juror confided in her parish priest, despite an admonition from Judge Murphy that jurors were not to talk about the trial to anyone while they were hearing evidence.

Blurbs Still Plug Ohio State Fair

COLUMBUS, Sept. 8—The public relations firm hired by Ohio State Fair Manager Edwin Bath is still sending out publicity blurbs on the exposition which ended last Friday.

The latest, placed in the mail yesterday, reached news offices today.

Rerouting Heavy Traffic Getting Council's OK

In an effort to eliminate heavy truck traffic through Circleville and setup a traffic safety standard, Circleville city council is considering rerouting heavy equipment over Route 104.

City Solicitor George Gerhardt was asked to write to the state highway department for a representative to come here at next council meeting to discuss the matter.

Should the proposal be adopted, much of Circleville's traffic problems would be solved along with complaints against noises created by the "big rigs" during early morning hours.

Trucks destined for Circleville under the proposal would be permitted entrance, but at all other times must use 104 as the main highway artery from north to south.

Council also approved Ray Cook's motion to experiment with no left or right turns from 6 p.m. to midnight on Saturdays at Court and Main streets.

Service Director Joe Rooney was directed to place a "no turn" sign at the intersection. Cook's motion called for no left turns only, but E. L. Montgomery asked for an amendment to the motion to include no right turns.

He said: "If we're going to experiment — let's experiment whole hog or none."

Council Gives Go-Ahead To Bids On Fire Alarm Signal Indicator

Circleville city council Tuesday night authorized advertisements for bids on a new control cabinet and indicator to modernize the fire alarm system.

Estimated cost of both pieces of equipment is expected to run about $975, Councilman Robert Adkins declared. Purchase of a six-inch bell to be placed in the police department is being considered.

City Solicitor George Gerhardt was directed to draw up the necessary papers for a council vote at next meeting. Since the cost of equipment is more than $500, council is required to let bids.

Purchase of the fire bell for the police department depends on whether the big bell atop city hall can be repaired without too much cost.

When in working order, the bell in the cupola located on the city hall roof rings out an alarm. The alarm indicator is needed to register accurately the area of the fire.

A state building inspector was contacted to investigate the city hall bell, but Service Director Joe Rooney said the state as yet has not sent a man.

IN ROONEY'S estimation, the bell cupola needs new timbers and bolts to put it in working order. At the present, the housing is not on a firm foundation and fear has been expressed the bell tower might collapse.

Council also agreed for Gerhardt to draw up an ordinance giving the "go-ahead" to Norfolk and Western railway officials to begin work on repairing crossings in the city.

Boyd Horn objected to the raising of crossing levels declaring that construction at Huston and South Scioto street were too high as it is. He was overrudden by council.

While Horn was lobbying for a railroad underpass in the southeast of Circleville as an insurance for fire trucks being able to reach destinations unhampered, council agreed to the installation of new lights.

The service department was directed to place illumination lights on Rosewood avenue and in Kroger alley. Both were approved by council at earlier meetings. Horn said he wanted additional lights at East Corwin street and Wheeler avenue.

Like most migratory fish, shad are rather erratic in their seasonal movements, and there may be considerable variation in their dates of appearance and in their abundance.

Importance Of Fly-Free Date Cited

Experts Warns Vigilance Needed

COLUMBUS, Sept. 8.—Weather conditions which indicate a lot of Ohio wheat might be planted after an early harvest of corn or soybeans and an upturn in Hessian fly numbers in the state cause T. H. Parks, extension entomologist, Ohio State university, to urge farmers to postpone all wheat sowing until after the fly-free date for their county. Fly-free date in Pickaway County is Oct. 1.

Parks says records kept for the past 20 years prove that an upturn in the number of Hessian flies one year is followed by a greater increase the second year.

Usually, losses of wheat the second year are heavy enough so most farmers observe fly-free dates for seeding and the damage is reduced for several years.

Hessian fly cannot be entirely eradicated because there always is some volunteer wheat which starts growing early enough to provide places for the fly to deposit its eggs. Some authorities claim harvesting with combines increases the amount of volunteer wheat, and therefore complicates the problem of Hessian fly control.

Parks says the heaviest fly infestation of all Ohio wheat, since records were kept occurred in 1932.

A SURVEY in that year showed fly larvae present in 35.5 percent of all wheat stalks in inspected fields. The larvae weakened the straw so it is likely to lodge before harvest time, and the heads either do not fill with grain or they are not picked up by the harvesting machinery. Field inspections in Stark, Tuscarawas and Holmes Counties in 1948 revealed 40 to 50 percent of wheat stalks infested with fly larvae. The average infestation was 8.8 percent in 22 counties, but it was only 3.4 percent in those same counties in 1947. The rise indicates a lot of Ohio wheat will be lost in 1949 unless fly-free seeding dates are more closely observed.

Judge Ponders Advice To Juror

NEWPORT, Ky., Sept. 8.—Judge Ray L. Murphy of Newport considered a motion for a new trial today, claiming a woman juror asked advice from a priest before voting on the death penalty for condemned slayer William Necamp, 26.

The claim was made in an affidavit signed by Necamp's sister, Mrs. Helen Courtney, who said the juror confided in her parish priest, despite an admonition from Judge Murphy that jurors were not to talk about the trial to anyone while they were hearing evidence.

Blurbs Still Plug Ohio State Fair

COLUMBUS, Sept. 8.—The public relations firm hired by Ohio State Fair Manager Edwin Bath is still sending out publicity blurbs on the exposition which ended last Friday.

The latest, placed in the mail yesterday, reached news offices today.

PATRICIA COZZENS as "Molly Pitcher," heroine of the Revolutionary war Battle of Monmouth, wins first prize with her aids, Robert and Billy McMahon, for their float in the Asbury Park, N. J., baby parade. Mayor George Smock presents the cup to the 6-year-old miss from Bradley Beach. (International)

Rerouting Heavy Traffic Getting Council's OK

In an effort to eliminate heavy truck traffic through Circleville and setup a traffic safety standard, Circleville city council is considering rerouting heavy equipment over Route 104.

City Solicitor George Gerhardt was asked to write to the state highway department for a representative to come here at next council meeting to discuss the matter.

Should the proposal be adopted, much of Circleville's traffic problems would be solved along with complaints against noises created by the "big rigs" during early morning hours.

Trucks destined for Circleville under the proposal would be permitted entrance, but at all other times must use 104 as the main highway artery from north to south.

Council also approved Ray Cook's motion to experiment with no left or right turns from 6 p.m. to midnight on Saturdays at Court and Main streets.

Service Director Joe Rooney was directed to place a "no turn" sign at the intersection. Cook's motion called for no left turns only, but E. L. Montgomery asked for an amendment to the motion to include no right turns.

He said: "If we're going to experiment — let's experiment whole hog or none."

Council Gives Go-Ahead To Bids On Fire Alarm Signal Indicator

Circleville city council Tuesday night authorized advertisements for bids on a new control cabinet and indicator to modernize the fire alarm system.

Estimated cost of both pieces of equipment is expected to run about $975, Councilman Robert Adkins declared. Purchase of a six-inch bell to be placed in the police department is being considered.

City Solicitor George Gerhardt was directed to draw up the necessary papers for a council vote at next meeting. Since the cost of equipment is more than $500, council is required to let bids.

Purchase of the fire bell for the police department depends on whether the big bell atop city hall can be repaired without too much cost.

When in working order, the bell in the cupola located on the city hall roof rings out an alarm. The alarm indicator is needed to register accurately the area of the fire.

A state building inspector was contacted to investigate the city hall bell, but Service Director Joe Rooney said the state as yet has not sent a man.

IN ROONEY'S estimation, the bell cupola needs new timbers and bolts to put it in working order. At the present, the housing is not on a firm foundation and fear has been expressed the bell tower might collapse.

Council also agreed for Gerhardt to draw up an ordinance giving the "go-ahead" to Norfolk and Western railway officials to begin work on repairing crossings in the city.

Boyd Horn objected to the raising of crossing levels declaring that construction at Huston and South Scioto street were too high as it is. He was overridden by council.

While Horn was lobbying for a railroad underpass in the southend of Circleville as an insurance for fire trucks being able to reach destinations unhampered, council agreed to the installation of new lights.

The service department was directed to place illumination lights on Rosewood avenue and in Kroger alley. Both were approved by council at earlier meetings. Horn said he wanted additional lights at East Corwin street and Wheeler avenue.

Like most migratory fish, shad are rather erratic in their seasonal movements, and there may be considerable variation in their dates of appearance and in their abundance.

IF LOUIS STAYS RETIRED

Era Of Boxing Confusion Ahead For John Q. Public

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Fans are about to enter an era of boxing similar to the one which followed the retirement of Gene Tunney in 1928 as the undefeated heavyweight champion.

When Tunney departed the scene he left a mad scramble for the crown and Joe Louis' seeming determination to stay retired has brought the same results.

There is no real standstill at large right now, but because of the money value of title fights some one—any one—will be established as the new champion. The National Boxing Association will meet in Philadelphia Sept. 13-15 and is reliably reported to be all set to thresh out the situation and come up with a solution.

The answer probably will be arrived at something like this:

THE WINNER of the Gus Lesnevich-Jersey Joe Walcott

match on the Tony Zale-Marcel Cerdan card Sept. 21 will be recommended for a match with Ezzard Charles, the survivor to get title recognition.

That may not bring unanimous satisfaction, but the promoters will have a new champion of sorts around whom to build their big shows. A heavyweight title match has an attractiveness that causes people to turn out no matter who the principals may be.

In this buildup toward a Louis successor it also appears likely that the Tournament of Champions, Inc., will wind up with the next champion—always assuming that Louis stays in retirement.

They have Lesnevich and Walcott rather tightly sewed up and will go farther to get Charles on the possible recommendation of the NBA than any of the other promoters, most notably the 20th Century Sporting Club.

For one thing, the NBA controls boxing in New Jersey where the Tournament people operate. The 20th Century has no assurance that the New York commission will sanction a heavyweight tournament and will be disinterested in establishing a champion for the NBA.

Whatever else happens, there will be a scramble until a real standstill fighter comes along.

JIM JEFFRIES brought one on when he retired in the long ago and that pattern prevailed when Tunney quit. It really didn't end in the latter case until Louis came along to again give the division a standstill titleholder.

IF LOUIS STAYS RETIRED

Era Of Boxing Confusion Ahead For John Q. Public

NEW YORK, Sept. 8—Fans are about to enter an era of boxing similar to the one which followed the retirement of Gene Tunney in 1928 as the undefeated heavyweight champion.

When Tunney departed the scene he left a mad scramble for the crown and Joe Louis' seeming determination to stay retired has brought the same results.

The National Boxing Association will meet in Philadelphia Sept. 13-15 and is reliably reported to be all set to thresh out the situation and come up with a solution.

The answer probably will be arrived at something like this:

THE WINNER of the Gus Lesnevich-Jersey Joe Walcott

Colts Rookie Leads Offense In AAC Book

NEW YORK, Sept. 8—A 21-year-old rookie quarterback-passer deluxe is the leading offensive star today in the All-America Football Conference.

Latest statistics of the AAC show that Y. A. Tittle of the Baltimore Colts is an offensive man gang as a result of his record-shattering debut Sunday against the eastern champion New York Yankees.

Tittle set four new records and tied another in leading the Colts to a 45-28 win over New York.

The former Louisiana State flash set new passing and total offense standards with 346 and 354 yards gained, respectively.

His 16.9 yard average per pass attempt and 31.5 yards gained per pass completion also set new marks.

Tittle's three touchdown passes and quarterback sneak for a TD tied the touchdown-responsibility record.

Spec Sanders of the Yankees, defending rushing, total offense, and scoring list is in a fine position to repeat. Sanders is second in rushing, third in total offense, and first in scoring with four goals good for 24 points.

Injuries Bring Crying Towel

COLUMBUS, Sept. 8—A flock of minor injuries had Ohio State University Football Coach Wesley Fesler reaching for the crying towel today.

None of the various and assorted hurts was serious, but they were forcing the Buck mentor to slow down his practice schedule.

A strenuous double session yesterday was marked by the absence of Ends Ed Basinger, Traian Dendiu and Sonny Gande; Tackles Jack Jennings, Bill Edwards and Bill Trautwein; Guard George Tonneff, and Center Ronnie Wulf.

In the backfield, Jerry Krall continued to rest aching leg muscles caused by the unaccustomed brace he must wear on his bad knee, and Mike Canavino nursed a cut elbow.

Lamotta Hands Charity TKO

NEW YORK, Sept. 8—Middleweight Jake Lamotta, fresh out of the doghouse with the New York State Boxing Commission, today boasted a victory on his comeback trail.

The Bronx "bull" scored a TKO over Burl Charity of Youngstown in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-rounder at New York's Park Arena.

The bout was Lamotta's first in New York since the six month suspension imposed on him by the commission for allegedly giving a "questionable" performance against Light-Heavyweight Billy Fox last Winter.

Nellie Custis, whose grandmother, a widow, married Gen. George Washington, revived the custom of wearing a bridal veil when she was married on Washington's last birthday, Feb. 22, 1799.

match on the Tony Zale-Marcel Cerdan card Sept. 21 will be recommended for a match with Ezzard Charles, the survivor to get title recognition.

That may not bring unanimous satisfaction, but the promoters will have a new champion of sorts around whom to build their big shows. A heavyweight title match has an attractiveness that causes people to turn out no matter who the principals may be.

In this buildup toward a Louis successor it also appears likely that the Tournament of Champions, Inc., will wind up with the next champion—always assuming that Louis stays in retirement.

Whatever else happens, there will be a scramble until a real standstill fighter comes along.

JIM JEFFRIES brought one on when he retired in the long ago and that pattern prevailed when Tunney quit. It really didn't end in the latter case until Louis came along to again give the division a standstill titleholder.

Louis won from Braddock, who had won from Baer, who had out-suffled Carnera, who had stopped Sharkey, winner over Schmeling. The latter became the first titleholder after Tunney by winning on a foul from Sharkey, who later won the title by out-pointing the German.

Anyhow, it was a scramble and none of the men was ever accepted as a genuine champion. Louis alone filled the bill for more than a decade and leaves—if he has retired—the division in a rather sad state.

Cubs Sign Up Disputed Rookie

CHICAGO, Sept. 8—The Chicago Cubs have signed Dan Lynch Jr., 21-year-old shortstop who was declared a free agent last week by Commissioner Happy Chandler.

Lynch, who played with Waco (Tex.) of the Class B Big State League, will close out the season with the sixth-place National League team.

The former Southern Methodist right-hander was freed from his contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates when Chandler ruled the Cubs had violated the bonus rule in signing the rookie's father as a scout.

Pirate '9' Pressing NL Leader

Bucs Now Bent On Flag Grab

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 — The little heralded Pittsburgh Pirates are riding smugly in second place today bent on overhauling the National League pace-setting Boston Braves.

Billy Meyer's boys are four games behind the Braves which is considerable at this stage of the season. Actually, their position is much more menacing than this figure would indicate.

The Pirates have six more games to play than Boston and in the important loss column they are only one in arrears.

For last year's last place club, the Pirates have staged an amazing about face with a cast dotted with second hand players and worn out stars.

Meyer may come close to the Manager Of The Year award in his first outing in the big time by his adroit manipulation of two 40-year-old pitchers, Rip Sewell and Fritz Ostermueller.

Zale All Set To Swat Pants Off Frenchman

CHICAGO, Sept. 8—Tony Zale leaves Chicago today, eastward bound to beat the pants off Marcel Cerdan.

That, at least, is the object of the journey which starts with the Twentieth Century Limited leaving Chicago this afternoon and ends 13 days hence, the night of Sept. 21, in the ring in Roosevelt Stadium, Jersey City.

Then and there Zale is to defend his middleweight boxing title against Cerdan, the Frenchman with a he-ho-fights-and-runs-away philosophy.

"It's dreadful," says Sam Pian, who is Zale's co-manager. "You never see anything like that Cerdan. He hits, and away he goes; he hits, and away he goes."

Zale himself listens and says, composedly: "When I get to him, I get him."

In Loch Sheldrake, N.Y., meanwhile, Cerdan's trainer thinks Marcel could do with a little morale-building.

As a result, the trainer, Lucien Rupp, has written French govt. that they make it a point to have the French ambassador to the United States, Paul Bonet, attend the Cerdan-Zale fight.

Rupp also wrote that it would be fitting if Bonet visited Cerdan's training camp at Loch Sheldrake "to wish him well."

Fleming Voted Tops In AA

COLUMBUS, Sept. 8 — First Baseman Leslie Fleming, the 320 homerun slugger of the Indianapolis Indians, was named the American Association's most valuable player today.

Thirty-two years old, the big left-hander leads the circuit in runs batted in with 133 through Sept. 3, and to that date has slugged out 24 homers, 26 doubles and six triples.

Other players to receive "most valuable" ballots were First Baseman Mike Natisin of Columbus, Third Baseman Al Rosen of Kansas City, Outfielder Ted Beard of Indianapolis, and Manager Al Lopez of Indianapolis.

Joe Neville Out Grooming His Delaware Track

DELAWARE, Sept. 8 — The Delaware Fairgrounds track was being groomed today in preparation for the Grand Circuit harness racing meet scheduled there Sept. 20 through Sept. 24.

Some $100,000 in prize money is being posted for the five-day meet by round Joe Neville and his associates to bring the cream of the nation's trotters and pacers to the oval.

Star attraction of the meet is the renewal of the Little Brown Jug, with a purse approaching $50,000 put up for the ten or a dozen crack three-year-old pacers in the top racing classic of the country.

Expected to be the favorite at post time is Knight Dream, world-record-breaking two-year-old of last year. He climaxed his two-year-old career with a 2:00 1-5 mile at the Lexington Trots to erase the previous mark of 2:00 1-2 set a few years back by Jimmy Creed.

Some 30,000 spectators are expected for the five-day meet.

AA Playoff Posts Seem Assured

By International News Service

The American Association baseball race pounded into the home stretch today with the four post-season playoff positions apparently clinched by Indianapolis, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Columbus.

The race ends Sunday, and Fourth Place Columbus at present leads Fifth Place Minneapolis by three and a half games.

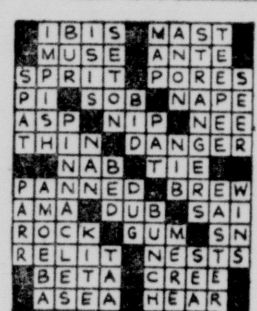

All teams were idle yesterday, the last scheduled vacation of the season.

The title of "world's fastest human" won by Jesse Owens in 1936, will be presented with a plaque and a watch. His coach, Eddie Finnigan, also will receive a plaque.

The Bera flash made his final European appearance in Stockholm last Saturday and arrived in Cleveland today.

Fleming Voted Tops In AA

COLUMBUS, Sept. 8 — First Baseman Leslie Fleming, the 320 homerun slugger of the Indianapolis Indians, was named the American Association's most valuable player today.

Thirty-two years old, the big left-hander leads the circuit in runs batted in with 133 through Sept. 3, and to that date had slugged out 24 homers, 26 doubles and six triples.

Other players to receive "most valuable" ballots were First Baseman Mike Natisin of Columbus, Third Baseman Al Rosen of Kansas City, Outfielder Ted Beard of Indianapolis, and Manager Al Lopez of Indianapolis.

Joe Neville Out Grooming His Delaware Track

DELAWARE, Sept. 8 — The Delaware Fairgrounds track was being groomed as carefully as any racehorse today in preparation for the Grand Circuit harness racing meet scheduled there Sept. 20 through Sept. 24.

Some $100,000 in prize money is being posted for the five-day meet by rotund Joe Neville and his associates to bring the cream of the nation's trotters and pacers to the oval.

Star attraction of the meet is the renewal of the Little Brown Jug, with a purse approaching $50,000 put up for the ten or a dozen crack three-year-old pacers in the top racing classic of the country.

Expected to be the favorite at post time is Knight Dream, world-record-breaking two-year-old of last year. He climaxed his two-year-old career with a 2:00 1-5 mile at the Lexington Trots to erase the previous mark of 2:00 1-2 set a few years back by Jimmy Creed.

Some 30,000 spectators are expected for the five-day meet.

AA Playoff Posts Seem Assured

By International News Service
The American Association baseball race pounded into the home stretch today with the four post-season playoff positions apparently clinched by Indianapolis, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Columbus.

The race ends Sunday, and Fourth Place Columbus at present leads Fifth Place Minneapolis by three and a half games.

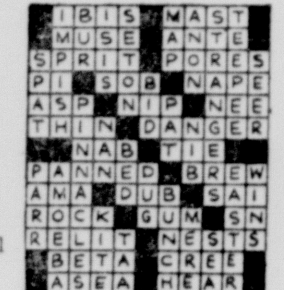

All teams were idle yesterday, the last scheduled vacation of the season.

the title of "world's fastest human" won by Jesse Owens in 1936, will be presented with a plaque and a watch. His coach, Eddie Finnigan, also will receive a plaque.

The Barea flash made his final European appearance in Stockholm last Saturday and arrived in Cleveland today.

1,600 Students Expected When City's Schools Open

59 Teachers To Comprise Staff Here

Classes To Open Thursday Morning

About 1,600 students are expected to file into Circleville's high school and four elementary schools at 9 a. m. Thursday for the first classes of the 1948-49 school year.

Included in that figure are to be students from Wayne and Washington Townships who will attend the high school. The faculty for the incoming student throng will number at 59, with 34 elementary grade teachers and 25 high school teachers.

Thursday's school schedule will comprise only a half-day session. There is no afternoon program scheduled.

Friday, however, will be the start of a long, long year and it will be a full-length day.

Largest elementary school teaching staff is at Corwin street school which has a total of 14 teachers.

They are Florence Hoffman, principal and teacher of arithmetic 7; Mrs. Eva Farrell, grade one; Mrs. Faye Porter, grade two; Mrs. Bernice Immell, grade three; Mrs. Opal Ullman, grade four; Mrs. Merle Collins, and Mrs. Ruby Wallon grades five; Mrs. Helen Cress, Mrs. Merle Penn and Mrs. Hazel Steele, grades six; John L. Chilcote, geography 7 and science 7 and 8; Mrs. Mildred Dowden, English 7; Mrs. Margaret Gillen, history 7; and Mrs. Louise Brown, special education.

FRANKLIN street ranks second in number of faculty for the ensuing year with a total of eight teachers. They are: Mrs. Mary Johnson, principal and grade one teacher; Mrs. Elizabeth Ward, grade one; Mrs. Mary Blackburn and Mrs. Lucille Webb, grades two; Mrs. Kathryn Bower and Mrs. Lucille Scott, grades three; Mrs. Mary Pfoutz, grade four; and Mrs. Frances Pitt, grade five.

High street school and Walnut street each are to have six teachers for the coming year.

Teaching staff at High street is to be headed by Miss Sophia Parks, principal and teacher of grade five and includes Mrs. Ruth Florian and Mrs. Margaret Mills, grades one; Mrs. Blanche Woltz, grade two; Mrs. Eloise Dunkel, grade three; and Mrs. Marguerite Weiler, grade four.

Miss Ethel Stein is to head the teaching staff at Walnut street school as principal and teacher of grade four.

Other members of the teaching staff include Mrs. Ruth Denman and Doris Schreiner, grades one; Mrs. Ruth Thompson, grade two; Mrs. Eleanor Edgington, grade three; and Miss Martha Reid, grade five.

List of the teachers for the eighth grade and high school for the coming year includes Mrs. Audrey Batterson, English 9, speech and dramatics; E. R. Bennett, arithmetic 8, biology and assistant coach; Mrs. Lois Brobst, commercial studies; Mrs. Alice Brown, English 8 and arithmetic 9; Miss Florence Brown, social science 8.

Three Divorces Are Granted By Court Here

Two wives and a husband have been granted divorce decrees in Pickaway County common pleas court.

Faye Graham was awarded a divorce from her husband, Pearl Graham on grounds of gross neglect and extreme cruelty. The Grahams are the parents of three children, ages nine, seven and five.

Her divorce ended exactly 10 years of married life for the Grahams. Her petition declared they were married Sept. 6, 1938.

Graham was ordered to pay $20 per week toward the support of his children plus the house rent for his former wife. She was given custody of the children and all household furniture.

Accused of gross neglect, Robert Phillips was divorced by his wife, Marietta Phillips. They were married July 7, 1946, and it was stated they have no children. She was restored to her former name of Marietta Fausnaugh.

A nine-year-old marriage came to an end when Harry D. Metcalf received his divorce decree from Pauline E. Metcalf on grounds of gross neglect.

The couple was married Oct. 14, 1939, and they have four children which were placed in the custody of their father.

The Nub Peak, near the Clearwater river in Idaho, is one of the scenic spots of that state.

Neglect Charged As Wife Asks Marriage End

Suit to dissolve a one-year-old marriage has been filed in Pickaway County common pleas court by Katherine E. Steele, a minor, whose petition accuses her husband of gross neglect of duty.

Her petition says she married Robert Steele on July 8, 1947, in Derby and that they have no children. It further states he has failed to support his wife.

She is asking Judge William D. Radcliff to restore her to her maiden name of Katherine E. Walters and for a restraining order to be placed against her husband.

In addition, Mrs. Steele is requesting a reasonable amount of temporary alimony and possession of the household furniture.

The postage stamp was invented by James Chalmers, a printer, of Dundee, Scotland in 1839.

Farm Partnership Bringing Suit For Accounting

Petition for an accounting of proceeds from the dissolved Brookfield Farm has been filed in Pickaway County common pleas court by Richard Vincent of Circleville RFD.

Until March 22, 1947, Vincent's petition states, he and Frank B. Teegardin of Ashville RFD were in partnership doing business as the Brookfield Farm.

On that date, it was declared, the firm was dissolved by mutual consent with Teegardin to take stock on hand, collect back debts and pay outstanding bills and make a final adjustment with the plaintiff.

The petition declares Teegardin instead applied the proceeds to his individual use and failed to distribute the balance with his onetime partner.
